West leads the king of spades and then shifts to the ten of diamonds. What is the best plan to make ten tricks?

But How You Play The Game

I believe that it was American sports writer Grantland Rice who coined this phrase to express the view that as well as winning and losing there is also another aspect to sport – sportsmanship. David Stern brought this example to my attention. David writes:

Tony Leibowitz, playing with Adam Edgtton against Christine and Jenna Gibbons (mother daughter from NZ) in Round 4 of the National Swiss Pairs

With around 5 tricks, to play Leibowitz revoked, resulting in a score of 620 for Gibbons/Gibbons following the director's ruling.

About 20 minutes later Christine Gibbons summoned the director stating that there was no way she could make the contract insisting on the score being changed to her scoring -100.

Tony adds:

I would like to add that I insisted she did not have the score amended as the ruling was entirely in the laws of the game but she insisted that the scores be amended. What fine sportsmanship and a true credit to the game. Well done Ladies and well done NZ.

Tony stressed in conversation just how impressed he was by Christine's action but added, "I don't often say good things about Kiwis."

To which I replied that it was totally mutual with us about Aussies

Tim Bourke's Problem - Solution

You can afford to lose a diamond trick, provided as you do not lose three black-suit tricks as well. Suppose the full deal is:

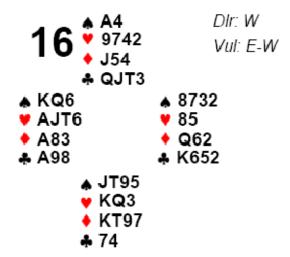

The idea is to avoid any guesswork in the end position. So, you should aim to endplay West with the third round of spades. Also, if East gains the lead, he can find the unwanted shift to a club. Consequently, you should play low from dummy at trick two. If East plays the queen, you will have three diamond tricks and your contract. So, East plays low and your best play is to do likewise, following with the two of diamonds. You will win the next diamond trick with your ace, draw trumps ending on table, ruff the seven of spades and play a diamond to the king. Finally, you will lead the jack of spades and discard the two of clubs from your hand.

West will win this with his ace of spades but then he has no safe exit. A spade or a diamond will give you a ruff-and-discard, allowing you to ruff in dummy and throw the queen of clubs from hand. As West will no doubt shift to a low club, you will take two clubs, six trumps and two diamonds for ten tricks in all.

Swiss Match 6

This round saw Alex Smirnov and Andy Hung pitted against Christine and Jenna Gibbons.

They start with board 16 on which Andy and Alex defended well for a 5 imp pick-up.

Christine opened a Precision club and became declarer in 1NT.

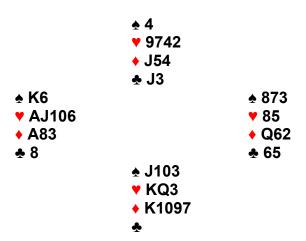

Alex led the ♣Q which Christine won in hand with the Ace. She immediately returned the suit to Alex's 10 and dummy's King. A small spade to the Queen and North's Ace followed. Alex switched to the ♣J which declarer allowed to win the trick. A second diamond was covered by the Queen and King and Christine ducked again. Andy switched to the ♣J, taken by the King. Christine exited with a club which Alex took, to play another diamond. In hand with the Ace, Christine was only able to add the ♥A to her trick tally for two off and 5 imps to Alex and Andy.

The lead of the •J spells the end of 1NT but once Alex had, naturally enough, led a club Christine could have made on this particular layout.

The play continues exactly as at the table until Alex plays the *J in this position.

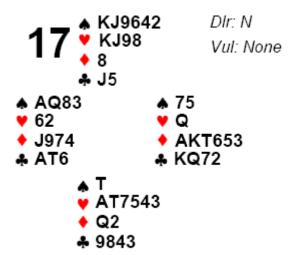

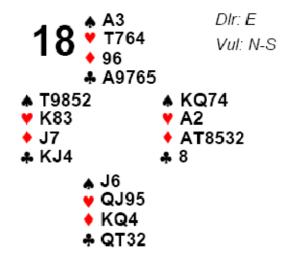

Declarer must play low from dummy on the ◆J, take with the Ace and then cash the ♠K. The exit of a low spade then endplays South in the red suits. If South cashes the other top spade and exits with a heart, declarer finesses and throws South in with another heart and South will have to concede the seventh trick to the ◆Q. If instead, South exits with ◆K and a small diamond, declarer leads a heart towards hand and takes South's ♥Q with the Ace to play the ♥J back to the King. South will then have to concede trick 13 to the ♥10.

On the next, Alex and Andy competed vigorously in a Precision club auction but they failed to deflect Jenna.

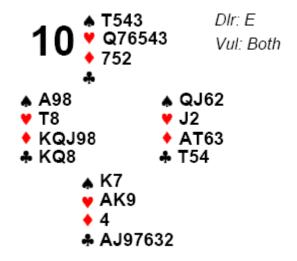

Jenna upgraded the East hand to a P club and Andy overcalled 2♥ to show hearts and clubs. Christine doubled and Alex went to the heart game. Jenna settled things in 5♦. Dummy was very acceptable and 11 tricks were quickly taken for 3 imps.

Christine and Jenna had no trouble reaching 4♠ on

And that was 2 imps against the datum.

Then confusion reigned.

Andy opened 1♣ after a pass from Jenna. Christine overcalled 1NT. Alex put in 2♣ - alerted as showing the majors.

Jenna called 2♥. Andy queried this and was told that it was natural and non-forcing so he doubled. Christine passed as did Alex. Jenna now called 3♦ and the auction finished.

Before the lead, Christine said that maybe she was wrong and that possibly Jenna was actually asking for a stop. The director was called and he established the facts as above.

He gave Alex his final pass back in accordance with Law 21B1

 a. Until the end of the auction period and provided that his partner has not subsequently called, a player may change a call without other rectification for his side when the Director judges that the decision to make the call could well have been influenced by misinformation given to the player by an opponent (see Law 17E)

Alex chose to pass anyway and 3• meandered its way to 1 down. The director was resummoned with Alex and Andy expressing the view that, without the misinformation, Alex would have overcalled 3• which surely would have seen Christine bid 4• - causing Alex to bid the heart game.

The director listened to all the players carefully and left to consult and consider his ruling. He returned eventually to rule an adjusted score of N-S playing 3, making 10 tricks.

This ruling is made under Law 21B3

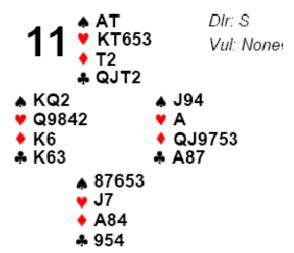

3. When it is too late to change a call and the Director judges that the offending side gained an advantage from the irregularity he awards an adjusted score.

The director ruled misinformation on the grounds that there appeared to be considerable doubt that East-West actually had a hard agreement on action after a two-suited overcall. As such West should have not given the explanation which she did.

Andy and Alex exercised their right to appeal.

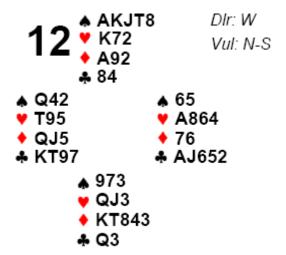

By a majority decision, the Appeals Committee ruled that the director's ruling would stand. The Committee being of the opinion that 4 would actually be reached. So Alex and Andy picked up an imp against the datum of 140.

Jenna and Christine picked up a couple of imps for making 3NT on Alex led a club and Christine took this to drive out the ◆A. She took the second club and drove out the ◆A and claimed when clubs broke kindly.

The ladies gained a further 4 imps when Andy invited game on Alex opened the North hand 1NT and Andy bid 2♠ as a rangefinder. Alex showed a minimum with a 2NT rebid and there they rested. Six obvious East-West tricks followed for one off.

Andy and Alex fought back when Jenna and Christine reached an ugly 3NT on Jenna showed 18-19 balanced as East and Christine transferred to spades and then offered hearts. Jenna settled in 3NT.

Andy led the &Q and continued with a small club when Jenna ducked. This gave Jenna the opportunity to cash four club tricks but there were only the obvious three other tricks so that was two off and 5 imps to North-South.

Board 14 was a straightforward 1NT making 2 and board 15 was timed out, due to the delays around board 10.

The final outcome was a 12-11 moral victory to Alex and Andy.

Pelagic Restaurant

Michael Wilkinson

After play on Saturday night I went to a new restaurant that opened in the centre of Canberra called Pelagic. The chef, Alex King, used to work at Artespresso in Kingston and his creative talents are now being applied to a primarily seafood based menu.

After a cocktail (the bartender is very friendly and has a long list of drinks for you to choose from), we sat down for a seven course degustation menu with wine pairings. All the food and wine was first class but I particularly recommend the seared scallops. A simpler two/three course meal is of course possible, or even just a drink.

After dinner I spoke to the chef who agreed to give a 15% discount to anyone who mentions this review this week. I suggest you book early (phone: 6162 0752) as space is limited. The restaurant is just a short walk from Rydges at 131 London Circuit.

Swiss Match 7

Table 1 saw Ashley Bach (South) and Mike Cornell face off against Dennis Zines (East) and Chris Sundstrom.

Dennis and Chris were first out of the blocks on

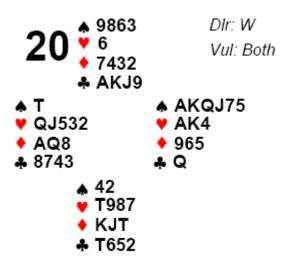

Although Chris showed five spades in the auction, Ash chose to lead the suit against Dennis's 3NT contract. Mike took this trick with the King and switched to a club but it was one trick too late. Dennis ducked two rounds before taking the A. A spade towards dummy saw the J become the ninth trick.

Then Dennis and Chris had an embarrassing moment.

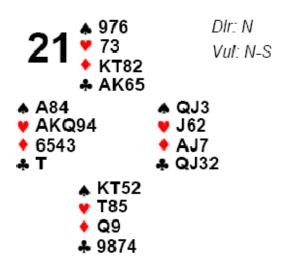

6♠ is an awfully good contract but Chris and Dennis's auction was a little briefer than would be ideal.

West	East
Р	1♠

And there it was.

They were more aggressive on the next, reaching 4♥.

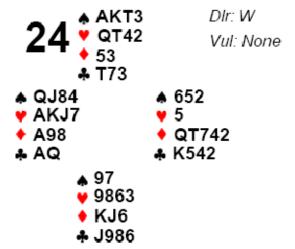

Mike led the ♣A and switched to a spade. Ash allowed the Queen to hold and Chris discarded his spade loser on dummy's ♣Q, Mike taking the King. Although Chris could later discard a diamond on the ♣J, he still had two diamond losers for one off. That was 5 NS imps as others stayed in a heart partial. Then Ash and Mike showed how to do this on Ash opened 1♥ after a pass from Dennis. Chris interposed 1♠ and Mike showed a heart raise with 2♠. Ash was not enthusiastic and opted for 3♥. As Mike put down dummy he upbraided himself for being a woose but the lack of Aces meant a further 4 imps for staying out of game.

Then Mike failed to find a necessary switch against 3NT.

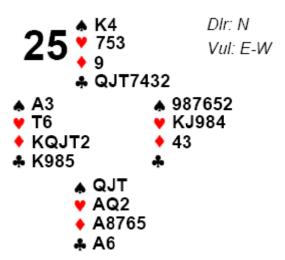

Chris played it and Mike led the ♠A. A club now beats this as Chris will only be able to manage two club tricks and will end up playing everything from his own hand. However, Mike switched to a heart which gave Chris his third trick in that suit. Chris gave up two diamonds to Ash and eventually came to his nine tricks by overtaking the ♠Q with the King.

Then a major East-West disaster.

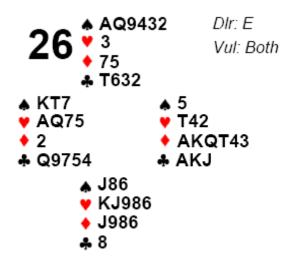

Mike opened 3♣ and Ash opted for 3NT. Chris doubled this with some relish; in fact, it's only going one off because of Ash's diamond length but +100 for Chris and Dennis would have been a huge improvement on actuality.

Dennis thought the double was for takeout so he bid 4♣ to ask for Chris's major. The doubling started immediately. 4♦ from Chris and Ash doubled. This ran round to Dennis who went to 4♥... and Ash doubled. Chris retreated to diamonds... and Ash doubled.

Mike led the ♣Q and Chris was not amused by the sight of dummy. He ruffed the lead, crossed to hand with a spade and ruffed another club. A spade off table saw Ash play the Jack and Mike the King. A club continuation was ruffed by Ash and he played a spade for Mike to score with his singleton trump. Another club ruff followed and Ash exited a heart. Declarer could not prevent Ash from scoring a small diamond as well as the Ace and the sorry outcome was -1400 and 16imps.

Then a somewhat unlucky board for Chris and Dennis.

Dennis opened the East cards with a Precision-syle 1♣. Ashley interposed 1♦ which showed either hearts or the black suits. Chris came in with 2♣ (5cards, 8+ points and game forcing.)

A mini-relay started and Dennis closed proceedings in 6. Five trumps, six diamonds and the Ace of hearts makes twelve tricks but Ash led a diamond. This gave up a trick to the 10 but destroyed declarer's communications when the 4-1 trump break became manifest.

Needing to dispose of dummy's losers quickly, Dennis tried to cash some diamonds but Mike ruffed the third round and put the ♠A on the table for one off.

The last board was an uninteresting partial and Bach-Cornell wrapped up a win by 28 imps

Which Way You Turn

It didn't seem to matter on this one from round 10, all roads led to 4♠x and -1100.

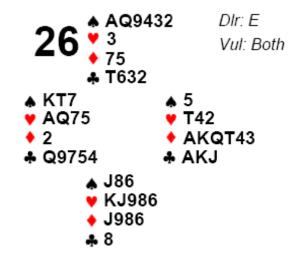

At Andrew and Sandra Richman's table, West opened 2♦ to show a weak two in hearts. North bid 3♦, East 4♥ and South found an exciting 4♠ bid.

East was not reluctant to double and 1400 went into the book for East-West.

At Mary Ellen Newton and Michael Ware's table, West passed and North opened 1♦. East stepped in with a frisky 4. Michael had a penalty double available and was not reluctant to exercise it and 1400 went into the book again but this time for North-South.

And talking of 1400's, here's the easiest one you'll never actually earn - it occurred in match 6.

NZ Seniors' international, Douglas Russell, opened the East cards with a P club. South overcalled 1 showing either hearts or the blacks. Chris Ackerley doubled and North passed. Douglas decided to await the next development and passed. So did South!

Only 1400 suggests that Ackerley-Russell need to sharpen up their defence.

Swiss Match 11

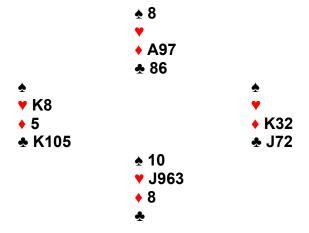

This seemed, to this observer at least, to be a fairly uninteresting set of boards on which to end the event. I kibitzed Tony Leibowitz (South) and Adam Edgtton as they opposed Bruce Neilll (East) and David Wiltshire.

Adam got a big one right on the first board.

Adam and Tony bid their way confidently to 4♠ and Bruce led a trump. Adam finessed dummy's Queen and David took the King to return another trump. Adam won with the Jack in the closed hand and ran the ♥10 to David's Queen. David played back the ◆10 which was covered by Adam's Jack and Bruce's Queen. The ♣Q was led to the Ace in the closed hand and Adam crossed to dummy with trump.

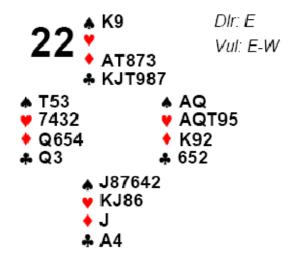

He cashed the ♥A to leave

He led the ♥J and, when David played the 8, went into the tank for some time.

Eventually, he emerged by discarding a diamond and the defence gave up.

It is in all the best books, when you become aware that there is a misfit – stop bidding. Adam demonstrated a fairly extreme example of this on Bruce opened the East hand 1NT and Tony overcalled 2• to show the majors.

Adam gave this a great deal of thought and eventually passed.

It was worth coming all the way across the Tasman just to see the expression on Tony's face when the green card appeared.

The defence started with the ♣Q which Tony took in hand to run the ◆J. Bruce played back a club and Tony was on table. He cashed the ◆A and played a second diamond. The defence cashed its spades but Tony could claim 8 tricks.

I wonder if Tony and Adam will now switch to Landy, whereby 2♣ shows the majors.
